

Application Period Open for 2024 API Scholarship Program

With over 80 scholarships awarded to date, API continues its support for the next generation of clinical laboratory professionals in their educational pursuits. Rising college seniors and juniors enrolled in a medical laboratory science program are encouraged to apply for one of four $5,000 API scholarships. “The intricacies of providing accurate test results for health care prevention, diagnosis, and treatment calls for qualified medical laboratory scientists,” said Sue Harmer, API President. “API offers these scholarships to demonstrate our commitment to the future of the profession.”

Hundreds of applicants apply for the API Scholarship each year. Application forms are now available at api-pt.com, and through medical laboratory science programs across the country. Students and their medical laboratory science program directors should submit completed applications by Monday, May 6, 2024. Awards will be announced in June 2024.

“Becoming a medical laboratory scientist is challenging and rewarding,” explained Harmer, a certified medical technologist herself. “It is a privilege to support students who seek to thrive in the clinical laboratory environment.”